DEVOTED TO THE ADVANCEMENT of MOTION-PICTURE PRODUCTION IN AMERICA

Albert Capellani

Personal Representative—Adolphe Osso, 1457 Broadway

WHERE ARE THEIR LEGS?

They thought the picture was out of focus.

They stamped their feet, they hissed.

AND THEN CAME APPLAUSE!!

It was in a little New York Motion Picture Theatre when spectators first saw the CLOSE-UP.

They had always seen figures in the far-off. And here was a face as full and close as a mother's over a cradle-bed.

It startled, it shocked, it delighted.

David Wark Griffith created the close-up, and later came other historic improvements from the ever-searching brain of that genius, the "cut-back" bringing suspense to the films, the "fade-away," the "long-shot," and on and on.

> Do you realize when you see a motion picture, no matter who the producer, you see a product done with the tools Mr. Griffith created? Others use them now, but he placed them in their hands and taught them how.

He exacts no tribute or royalty for their use. He gives them freely to the world.

"Mr. Griffith is the great legendary figure of the films, the great inventor and innovator of their youth, yet also the great consistent, progressing genius of today. As inventor of the 'close-up' and 'cut-back' and half a dozen other technical devices, he might be content to occupy the position of a Masolina, discoverer of perspective and the art of painting. Yet each new production demonstrates that he is a Masaccio as well—an artist of full and splendid naturalistic powers. His is an art of pure emotion which can go beneath thought, beneath belief, beneath ideals, down to the brute fact of emotional psychology."—(The New Republic.)

"With all respect to his rivals, Mr. Griffith has demonstrated his claim to the sole and only right to make a picture that will go on the big time and stay there at two dollars."— (Washington, D. C., Herald.)

"Griffith is the One Genius of the Films. He Stands Supreme and Alone."— (Indianapolis Star.)

DAVID WARK GRIFFITH

Producer of "Hearts of the World," now breaking all records in every principal city throughout the United States.

"WHEN you see a Griffith production, you see the Griffith form of screen acting—acting that is so natural that it does not appear to be acting: art that conceals art."—Louella Parsons.

"LILLIAN GISH and ROBERT HARRON should be pointed to as shining examples of what screen lovers should be. There is nothing left for them to learn."—New York Tribune.

"LILLIAN GISH and ROBERT HARRON, the most sublime pair of lovers since the great bard's immortal story of Romeo and Juliet."—Guy Price, Los Angeles Herald.

IN the twelve-reel Griffith productions, "The Birth of a Nation" and "Hearts of the World," you saw the Griffith school of acting at $1.50 and $2.00. Mr. Griffith is now producing a series of six six-reel pictures for Artcraft, showing at popular prices, including

"THE GREAT LOVE"

Mr. Griffith has at all times endeavored to give you his best, and in these Artcraft productions he will give you the same unique and diversified characterization taken from the book of life, keeping entirely away from the old, exaggerated, stereotyped forms of acting.

"On July 12th, at the request of Harry I. Garson, I met him at the Lasky Studios, Hollywood, where the arranged with me to communicate with The First National Exhibitors' Circut, and to "feel out" the State Rights Buyers on his picture, "The Hushed Hour".

We came to a definite agreement as to selling price, terms, etc.

I fulfilled my part of the contract, so advising Mr. Garson at his Detroit and New York Addresses.

If the First National should decline the picture my interest in its exploitation ceases,

Chains of Theatres an Important Factor

Gradually, in the past few years, there has been a decided tendency towards the accumulation of several theatres by one individuai or corporation, particularly the tieing up of all the best houses in one city.

In some districts, these theatre chains almost dominate the activities of that particular section, being at times in a position to dictate what releases shall be shown in better theatres and at what prices they shall be booked.

In analyzing this situation, and considering it in discussions with some of the more prominent sales managers here in New York, I have found a general recognition of the fact that there are not anything like ten thousand good theatres showing films in this country, and it is the general concensus of opinion that the actual figures, which oddly enough no one has ever listed perfectly, will come nearer to registering at about 6,000.

For years, the saying that there were fifteen or twenty thousand film theatres has been recited glibly by the voluble soothsayers of the industry with the result that that saying has taken its place alongside of such classics as "The indusry is still in its infancy" and "The surface of the industry has not yet been scratched."

It is very easy to understand how this peculiar idea as to the number of theatres in this country has held forth inasmuch as there has never, to my knowledge, and I have searched most of the offices in this town in recent years, been a truly accurate list secured of the theatres operating in this country, which would intelligently distinguish between an opry house in a hick town that might show a film once a year, and a live store show in a town of the same size which has progressed to the point of changing twice a week because of the ability of the manager in charge.

These so-called lists of theatres that have existed and used up postage in circularization for years in this industry, generally registered an appalling percentage of dead houses, repeats, and incorrect names and addresses. One of the principal reasons for the discrepancies which always existed in these lists was the fact that for many years it has been customary, particularly in the small towns, to change the name of a theatre whenever it changed management, and everyone who has been around the film business knows that theatres have changed management quite frequently

In every office, these lists have been in charge of the mailing clerk and every time a mailing clerk was fired, the list suffered because the new boy was entirely at sea. Most of the existing distribution organizations will tell you that they have a perfect list of theatres based upon reports made by their salesmen, and yet when it comes down to brass tacks you'll find that except for a list of customers and immediate prospects, there is no such thing as an accurate existing list which will approach anything like the figures running above ten thousand.

I do not for a moment dispute the fact that there are considerably more than ten thousand buildings in this country that bear the name of "theatre," and I understand that taxes have been paid on something like fifteen or sixteen thousand theatres, but this of course includes buildings of every sort which could be so labelled.

In analyzing the present situation, one outstanding fact presents itself. There are only a very few thousand truly worth while theatres.

The figures on the chain theatre situation run about as follows, these estimates having been prepared after a very careful consideration of data collected from several of our best distributing companies and from several interviews with well informed sales managers.

There are 100 chains in this country which will average ten theatres to a chain.

There are 150 chains in this country that will average five theatres to a chain.

There are 500 combinations in this country that will average three houses each.

There are 1000 instances where two houses are controlled by one man or one corporation.

This means that 100 men control 1000 houses; 250 men control 1750 houses; 750 men control 3250 houses and 1750 men control 5250 houses. Figuring that on the outside there are more than 1000 houses separately and individually owned that could qualify as first class theatres, we have a total of 6250 theatres.

It is undoubtedly true that there are several thousand theatres individually owned in addition to this 6250 houses, but there is little question in the minds of those well informed but that the 6000 mark amply covers everything that could be considered a first class film theatre.

When you think of such theatre chains as the Ascher Bros. in Chicago, the Stanley Interests in Philadelphia, the Saenger Interests in the South, the Jensen & Von Herberg theatres in the Northwest, the Hulsey chain in Texas, the Moss, Loew, Poli and Fox circuits, the Wells, Crandall, Craver and Lynch circuits in the South, the Rubin & Finkelstein circuit in Minneapolis, the Gordon theatres in Massachusetts, the Clune Circuit in California, the Lubliner and Trinz houses in Chicago, the Jones, Linick & Schaeffer in Chicago, the Kunsky houses in Detroit, the eight prominent theatres in Grand Rapids, the Butterfield Circuit in Michigan, the Keith & Proctor houses in New York and New Jersey, the Wilmer & Vincent houses in Pennsylvania, the several prominent circuits in Cincinnati, the Roland & Clark interests in Pittsburgh, etc, etc., it is easy to understand how the chains of theatres are a very very important factor in the booking of films in every district in this country today.

I have not attempted to give here any list or special figures because changes are so rapid in this business and I have only mentioned the names of chains that came to my mind in passing.

I believe that it is an important thing for everyone connected with the business to cease this silly talk of fifteen and twenty thousand theatres, because it is very misleading and frequently has rather disastrous results because the figures are accepted as reliable by uninformed persons who want to tamper with the film business either with a view of reforming it or with a view of investing money therein.

In discussing the number of really first class theatres, I found that one sales manager who should be rather well informed, felt that the number would not exceed 2500. Another estimated that it would be nearer 4000, and since he is connected with one of our largest corporations, it is possible that he, through having more goods to sell, has broadened his scope of vision, and included theatres which would not normally be considered really first class houses.

I believe a conservative estimate would place the number of really first class houses at about 2000, with a second 2000 rating as second class and a third 2000 as third class, with the balance, whatever the number may be, distinctly fourth class or worse.

The First National Exhibitors Circuit informs me that they have 4500 Chaplin customers. This would naturally carry down to the very smallest houses, and since Chaplin has played in competing houses, probably more than any other star, it is a splendid indication that a conservative figure should be used in estimating a total for the country.

With the growing tendency on the part of exhibitor individuals and exhibitor corporations to attempt to control all of the worth while theatres in a given community, the distributor of films is facing a rather serious problem. This is well known to established concerns, and I am only emphasizing the point at this time for the information of newcomers who may approach this marvelous industry with a nonchalant notion that it is "easy game."

When the fact is taken into consideration that the success or failure of almost any production in any territory is settled in the first thirty or sixty days' run of the film in that territory, the importance of the chain theatres becomes even more impressive. There are many districts today in which good films have been unable to make a dent because they did not get started under the proper auspices.

Figuring the use of eighty release prints, and I believe that number is about the maximum, and allowing for sixty days' booking, in which there will be some lost time and several extra day runs, we can estimate that each print in the sixty days' time will be shown in approximately twenty-five theatres. If the eighty prints work in twenty-five theatres in the first sixty days, it would register in 2000 theatres, which I believe is a figure that is seldom reached by any offering.

When you consider the fact that these bookings, and the success or failure of the production in those theatres influences to a marked degree the amount of bookings to be received in the other available theatres, it is easy to understand how important the first 1500 or 2000 theatres are in the process of marketing feature films.

I want to commend particularly to the newcomer and also to the director or star who is considering independent production, a careful consideration of the above figures on film distribution which is not as simple as it might seem, and yet I want to close with the remark that there was never such a wonderful opportunity as there is now and will be in the coming year for success in the fullest measure whenever a really worth while special feature is presented for distribution.

Most Important Event of the Year

Answering the question, "What do you consider the most significant happening in the motion picture industry between September, 1917, and 1918?", producers, distributors and exhibitors express their opinions in the following pages.

Griffith's Thought

What is more important in the records of the industry during the past year than the adoption of motion pictures by the War Office as the major medium for propaganda, educational and publicity work?

D. W. Griffith.

Value As Educational Medium

In my opinion, the most important development of the motion picture in the past year has been exemplified in its demonstration of definite value as an educational medium. Long before this year the world accepted the motion picture as the foremost agency of entertainment and amusement extant; but it remained for the activities of the screen this past year to register indisputably the fact that as an avenue of propaganda, as a channel of conveying thought and opinion to the world at large, it can not only be unsurpassed but unequalled by any other form of communication.

Thus during the last twleve months the motion picture has added to itself a great function, and has endowed its destiny with a tremendous purpose—that of bringing not only a smile and thrill, not only physical and mental emotions—but also enlightenment and spiritual uplift to its millions of followers. Beyond this important manifestation of its new power which the motion picture has displayed during the past year, it has further proven that it can bring this mental effect to bear not only upon the uneducated, but also upon the educated and thinking people.

In a greater measure than ever before in its entire history, the cultivated and cultured people of the country have found in the motion picture a genuine appeal to their minds and hearts. The motion picture is therefore no longer the theatre of the masses, but is today the amusement of the masses and classes. College professors, authors, lecturers, men of all the professional and scholastic fields have found in the photoplay theatres as deep and vital a lore to base principles and build dreams upon as they have found in the product of the pulpit, the platform and the library. The motion picture has found its place in the intellectual sun, and its power to kindle the spirits and touch the imaginations of legions of people is now adorned with a new psychic ability to reach the soul as well as the heart of mankind.

ADOLPH ZUKOR,
President, Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

Theatre Owner Becoming Producer

I consider the decision of motion picture theatre owners to enter the distribution field, lighting the way to a stable market for independent producers and assisting present distributing organizations in arriving at a sane, conservative system to do away with the gigantic waste in present methods, to be the most important happening of the year in the industry.

C. C. PETTIJOHN,
General Counsel,

Nothing New or Sensational

Personally I have not noted anything new or sensational, as regards either the execution or the presentation of motion pictures, that signalizes the past year in the history of the screen. No effort of either the producers or the exhibitors, however praisworthy, seems to me ground for unusual enthusiasm.

Apparently this lack of progress is due chiefly to the war. However, if I may be permitted to say so, no economic crises in the affairs of a commercial enterprise should be permitted to interfere in a matter of art.

The money spent on the production of mediocre film might just as well have been employed in the execution of pictures which would have left with us only the most interesting recollections. When we recall the films that have captivated our imaginations, whether because of their subjects, their settings, or their interpretation, we must agree, unfortunately, that recent motion photography has shown us nothing new or untried. For more than a year, we are forced to confess, this new art has made no actual progress.

Whose fault is it? I have no hesitation in replying, the producers. It has been the fault of the producer, who has sacrificed without scruple and without shame the cinematographic art to what many persons have too often confused with the motion picture industry, the chief aim of which is not primarily to produce a first-class film, but to achieve a good stroke of business.

Among the productions of recent months, the one which stands out above all the rest is "Hearts of the World" the masterpiece of the great Griffith, to whom I am happy to pay this public homage. Without question it is the most important, the most intensely tragic photoplay which the American cinematograph has produced since the outbreak of the war.

LEONCE PERRET

Getting Away From Old System

Unquestionably, the biggest event was the official declaration that the motion picture business is essential to the nation in wartime. Here is official recognition of our art as a vital, integral part of life—or our government itself. The screen has, I believe, given more consistent, well considered aid to the carrying on of the war than any other single factor. I am proud of the business of which I am a part and proud of its work in this war. In a hundred ways—from aiding Liberty Loan drives to sustaining the morale of the nation—the movie is doing its mighty "bit." The films carrying on.

The biggest event of production? There has really been no one big event of distribution. Yes. The big event here is the breaking away of stars and directors from producing organizations with their cut and dried system of production and their entrance into the field of independent photoplay making. This departure from the old system means individuality and should mean advancement to the photoplay. Naturally, but a portion of these independent producers will stand the test. But out of this melting pot something good is bound to come.

Appreciation of Open Booking Plan

In my opinion, the most important happening in the moving picture industry during the past year—outside of the affairs of war—is the rapid awakening of the mass of exhibitors to the fact that a wide open booking plan is the only safe one for them to adopt.

The attempt of some of the producing companies to tie up the exhibitors on a non-cancellable contract looked like a vicious proposition at first, but I believe it is proving a blessing in disguise because it has caused the exhibitor to study the benefits of open booking as never before.

You have helped in this awakening. Mr. Laemmle has helped to expose the dangers. I have also noticed a gradual movement among the majority of producers to arouse the exhibitors to the danger of an air-tight contract.

Many attempts have been made to effect a monopoly in this business, but the most recent attempt through the medium of the non-cancellable contract is by far the most shrewdly managed of them all. Years ago when a then large picture concern tried to secure a throttle hold on the exhibitors by means of patents, the campaign was so badly bungled by mistreatment of exhibitors that it fell of its own weight.

In the current campaign to control the exhibitors, there is no mistreatment of exhibitors at present; and therein lies the shrewdness or foxiness of the movement. What mistreatment might take place after a monopoly became a fact is guesswork, but the real danger of the present campaign lies or rather did lie in the fact that it was presented in such an alluring way to exhibitors.

The fact that a few, including yourself and Mr. Laemmle, undertook the unpleasant task of ripping the thing wide open and showing it in all its rottenness to exhibitors is a mighty fortunate thing for the showmen who hope to control their own theatres and be their own bosses.

As a result of this campaign of exposure, I understand that in cases where the exhibitors oppose the signing of a non-cancellable contract, they are given a special contract which is so rubber-stamped that it contains the usual cancellation clause.

According to my way of thinking. this daring attempt to give the exhibitor a sweet choking has been (and may still be) the most significant event in the business. Next in importance is the fact that the regular program feature has been forced to give way to the big special picture because the latter offers the highest class on the market.

R. H. COCHRANE,
Vice Pres., Universal Film Mfg. Co.

Exhibitor Co-operative Association

In my opinion, the most important happening in the motion picture industry during the past year, is the development of exhibitor co-operative associations throughout the United States.

It is my belief that we are listening to the murmurings only of co-operative bookings at this time and in the not too distant future a real big organization will be developed along practical business lines, which will be productive of very profitable results to the exhibitors interested.

The intensive development of the star series productions and the tremendous individual pictures which have appeared during the year, are also worthy of passing notice.

SYDNEY. S. COHEN.

Warring Factions Disappear

I consider the action of the Motion Picture Convention in Chicago of inestimable importance, in the fact that the two warring factions of the exhibitors became affiliated and their disappearance as a separate entirety, they having agreed to become a branch of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry.

This action makes it possible to secure as members at least 90 per cent. of the motion picture exhibitors of America. As practically all of the influential producers and distributors are members of the Association, the industry will now be in shape to build up one of the most powerful business organizations in the world, and it goes without saying, this power will be used for good.

The President of the United States, The Committee on Public Information, and other Governmental departments all look upon the motion picture as a wonderful medium of education, and the Government is taking advantage of this medium by spreading their publicity matter throughout the world in the form of motion pictures, both of an educational and entertainment character.

WILLIAM WRIGHT,
Sec'y and Treas., Kalem Co.

Exhibitor Distributing Organizations

In my opinion, the forming of the exhibitors distributing organizations, such as the First National, Affiliated and the United, will prove to be the greatest development, since they will be able to supply the exhibitors with good films, at the prices that he can afford to pay.

I hardly believe that my opinion is shared by the greater number of producing organizations, but nevertheless, this is my opinion.

THEO. W. WHARTON.

Becoming an Organized Business

The most important thing that has happened in the motion picture industry this year, has been the recognition given it by the Government as to its necessary importance in the spreading of propaganda and assistance in war work.

As to the development of the industry itself, it is quite apparent that we are rapidly becoming an organized business. The day of "horse swapping" business transactions is practically over and during no year have more noticeable steps forward been made in this direction than during the past one.

Along these lines the industry has become more stabilized as regards the relations between exhibitor and distributor. For instance, today the exhibitor is able to plan ahead with more certainty than ever before. He can sign for various products and feel quite sure that they will be delivered to him as per schedule. He can lay out his campaigns of exploitation just like a retailer in any other business can do. In short the industry is rapidly becoming more of a business than during any twelve months since its inception. I do not mean to say that the industry has become a perfect business institution, but surely it is rapidly approaching that point.

Awakening of The Exhibitor

I sincerely believe that the most important happening or development in the industry during the past year is the awakening of the exhibitor to a sense of his real position in the industry.

This awakening has taken the form of a realization that he, the exhibitor, is in reality the foundation of the motion picture structure, in view of the fact that his investment is the only permanent one in the business and that upon his efforts depend the development and expansion of the market for motion picture product.

With this realization the exhibitor has also discovered that the control of the industry cannot be in the hands of any one faction if the industry is to continue and to grow, unless such faction has complete ownership of all branches and consequent responsibility.

He has discovered that it is absolutely illogical for this control to be as it is now in the hands of producer interests, which only seek to perpetuate themselves by the control of transient elements, such as books, plays, directors and stars, whose value is not fixed, but continually fluctuating.

And, exhibitors as a whole, I believe, appreciate that it is unreasonable to suppose that producer interests can continue to dominate when their sole idea is to make all of the pictures required for the trade, rather than to adopt a system of encouraging production of quality on a competitive basis which, by the process of elimination will do away with the unfit or poor material and encourage new product from sources not controlled by at present dominant producer groups.

Although the exhibitor is awakening, history, recent and old, shows that co-operative movements, coming about spontaneously among the exhibitors themselves do not work out successfully and the exhibitor is in great danger of placing himself once again under producer control in a new form by supporting co-operative plans, the results of which are painted so glitteringly as to be not reasonably possible.

It has been stated that I personally object to producer control, just because it is producer control, and I believe this to be as good an opportunity as any to state that this supposition is entirely erroneous. I do not object to producer, or any other control, so much as to groups of producers controlling the business when their sole desire is for the perpetuation of their own schemes and organizations, rather than to encourage and promote progress and the advance of quality in all branches of the industry.

Any control which definitely encourages new ideas, new blood and progressive steps, in other words which is vital and which will definitely advance all of us as a collective unit, I firmly believe in and will support regardless of its origin.

WM. W. HODKINSON,
President W. W. Hodkinson Corp.

Increase in Entertaining Pictures

To my mind the most important happening of the year in the motion picture industry is that the producers have at last awakened to the fact that the public wants to be amused rather than horrified and the rapid strides the producers have made in the last few months toward the making of more light, wholesome and clean productions.

Here's hoping that they may continue.

With cordial regards and best wishes, I beg to remain,

H. M. CRANDALL,
Crandall's Theatres, Washington, D. C.

Stories of a Higher Type

To my mind the most significant developments in the motion picture industry in recent months have been:

An apparent development of the public's taste for the better type of pictures, the increase in the better type of film dramas, a higher type of stories, the disappearance of the audience that formerly awaited the salacious or "strong" dramas. I feel that the companies that have pinned their faith on cleanliness are coming more fully into their own.

As to the types of stories that seem to have gained the greatest popularity with exhibitors and the public, I have seen the steadily increasing popularity during the past year of the comedy drama that is packed with action and "situation." the popularity of the romantic melodrama that is skilfully presented and screened with good taste in better environments than have hitherto been associated with the thought of melodrama.

In distribution the noteworthy tendencies have been increased economies, more sane business management and the realization that war-time conditions made it imperative for the elimination of wasteful practices of the past.

SAMUEL GOLDFISH,
President Goldwyn Pictures Corp.

Doubling of Rental Prices

I suppose that you think my idea of the most important thing is the distribution of big productions at a fixed rental price of $10, $20 and $30 per day, but old top, I am going to fool you.

While I do not think that this is the most important happening this year, I do think that it is one of the important things for the exhibitor to look forward to in the future. Aside from this I do not know of anything else important except that from the exhibitor's standpoint (and I happen to be one), I find, upon signing contracts for my theatre, they are asking nearly double the rental price this year for the same stars that I played last year, and I cannot figure out how the exhibitor is going to make any money, when paying it all out for pictures.

I sincerely hope that someone else will have nerve enough to come out with a fixed price for pictures and thus get the picture industry down to a sound basis and out of the sky-rocket class. Unless this happens, I do not believe the producing or distributing of pictures will ever be a safe investment for anyone.

Just a minute! I made a little mistake. On second thought, and looking at your letter head, I believe Wid's Daily is one of the most important happenings of the year.

With best wishes to yourself, and hopes for big success for your publication,

FRANK G. HALL.

All Interests Under One Head

In my opinion the most important event that is taking place in the motion picture industry is the amalgamation of all the interests under one head during this last Chicago Convention. To me this is tremendous in its scope and offers unlimited possibilities.

Vital Factor in Propaganda

Replying to your letter of the 28th. ult. in which you asked for my opinion regarding the most note-worthy and significant thing accomplished by the motion picture industry during the past year—would say, without hesitation, that I consider the development of the motion picture, during the last twelve months, into a conspicuously vital factor for the dissemination of governmental propaganda, to be the most important. Had pictures accomplished nothing throughout their short history but to bring the great war home to the people of the United States, they would have vindicated, eternally, their right to live! Let those who doubt, go to any theatre any night, and listen to the spontaneous applause which greets a scene showing the action of our "Boys"—or French or English or Italian "Boys" —as they go "over the top"!

Both through original story, such as our patriotic war dramas, and through picturization of actual war scenes, such as our Weeklies, the motion picture, today, is positively developing patriots—dragging the spectator from the smug complacency of his good—and very safe—after-dinner-cigar, willy nilly, across the seas to the panting, sweating, struggling world-drama going on "over there." Our heretofore lethargic spectator now begins to see and, because he sees, to understand; and all this, because he, himself, has suddenly become an integral part of the titanic struggle, rapidly shifting his own perspective as the swift scenes unroll, until he finds himself, at last, fighting breathlessly, with the French, at Soissons—battling with Haig at Ypres —starving with the Belgians at Antwerp—and sweating with the Americans at the Marne—his breath quickens and his heart pounds as he, himself, falls into step with the Drums of the World!

Is any other factor in our social or civic life doing this? Can any other factor do it? No! Because pictures are the only agents we know which teach their lesson solely through the eye—the only medium which can tell a story without a single spoken, written or printed word. Seeing is, indeed, believing!

And so, Pride of Patriotism—grim Determination to Win the War—Calm Decision to support every measure of our government unreservedly to that end, is finally—through nightly and daily iteration—instilled, with telling force, into the breast of the spectator— a spectator taken from every class of American!

Let us not lose sight of the following fact in our earnest endeavor to turn out more and more artistic creations—namely: That today, the motion picture is teaching good citizenship—smashing, irrevocably, the Kipling adage that "East is East, and West is West—and never the twain shall meet"! For, through the motion picture, the West, our great agricultural West, and the East, our great industrial East, are made not only to meet, but to shake hands in a new and everlasting understanding. The eastern states, busy and competent, with their great steel industries—flaming-mouthed as some mighty prehistoric dragon—are suddenly made to understand, through pictures, that the West, with its countless acres of golden grain, is also playing a stupendous part in War Efficiency—by feeding the entire world! And the West, entirely self absorbed in this mighty undertaking, is also, made to comprehend—again through pictures—that all the smashing, noisy clamor in the dingy steel factories of the East is not just so much distasteful noise and grime, but the battle-song of a million rivets, welding together the mighty "Beams" and "Hulls"—without which, their own wide fields of wheat could never be shipped to feed a starving world! The Need of the Wheat—the Need of the Steel! Twin Necessity, which the East and the West are meeting jointly—how they are meeting this need, is shown to the masses of our great American Public through pictures every day throughout the year. Are we not justified in calling this efficient citizenship? And never let us forget that this mighty lesson in patriotism is brought home to more people—more often and at a cheaper price—than through any other medium in the world!

All other development exhibited by our very active industry during the past year—however far reaching—to me, becomes subordinate.

CECIL B. de MILLE
Director General,
Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

Hope for the Future

In my opinion, the most important development in the film industry during the past year, has been, of course, its recognition by the Government as an essential industry, thereby acknowledging it as the most important medium known for propaganda.

While dwelling upon the strength of this great industry of ours, I am prompted to express what I hope will be the most important development in the coming year, viz., the proper and organized use of this strength by all exhibitors. Simultaneously with the announcement of the Government's attitude came a manifestation on the part of one distributor, proving positively that the exhibitor is dormant and unaware of his great power. Deposits were revived, the exhibitor meekly acquiesced. The retailer was made to finance the manufacturer. A condition unfair!

To come back to the hope I expressed above, until exhibitors realize what influence their concerted voices can exert in the councils of the industry, they will one and all be individually a prey to the big fellow.

I hope that in the coming year we will take this Governmental opinion seriously, and at last get together, not merely for our mutual benefit, but, which is more urgent, for our mutual protection. If we could persuade the Government, we can certainly persuade the exchange.

M. KASHIN,
Manager Broadway Theatre,
New York

Independent Producing Units

To my mind, the formation of independent producing units headed by stars, constitutes the matter of most importance to the business as a whole.

In it I can see the beginning of a period when the exhibitor will be able to book a picture for its box office and entertainment value. When the star of a pleasing production will reap the benefits also, both financially and as an artist. When the bad picture will lie on the exchange shelf and the good picture be working with extra prints. When the near star will not be carried on a program at the same prices as a really popular actor's productions. When the star, the director and the business office will hesitate before doing a story that doesn't stand a chance of getting across with audiences.

If this time ever comes, the showmen of the picture houses will then be able to be something besides theatrical bell hops.

Government's Recognition of Screen

In my judgment, the most important development in the motion picture industry for the past year, is the recognition by all the important governments of the world and their various agencies, that the motion picture is the greatest means of thought transmission so far known to man, combined with the thorough realization, on the part of the industry, that so potent a vehicle of education and influence carries with is a corresponding responsibility.

As applied to our country, the motion picture has become the school of patriotism for the American people, as well as the principal agency of the Government in the war education of its citizens and their resulting duties.

WALTER W. IRWIN,
Vice Pres. and General Manager,
Vitagraph Co.

Humanizing Effect of the War

In my opinion the greatest happening in the motion picture industry during the year is the sobering and humanizing effect of the war.

There has been too much quackery and unreality in the motion picture. Too many producers had an idea that they could get by with trickery and spectacular stuff that had neither truth nor heart appeal. The heroic effort and sacrifice we have been forced to undergo in this desperate struggle as a nation has compelled us to realize that the greatest thing in the world is human nature, after all. We are getting down to the fundamentals.

In times of great stress and anxiety we are naturally serious-minded, but we also require the saving grace of humor to keep us out of the dumps. The motion picture reflects life, and whatever affects life affects the motion picture. The kind of pictures in demand now are those that tell us the truth about life and at the same time spread a wholesome and cheery influence that gives us heart to meet all tests of courage and sacrifice.

War is responsible for a great many things that are evil. But its influence on the motion picture is of the most salutary sort.

FRANK A. KEENEY,
Pres. Frank A. Keeney Corp.

Recognizing Good Quality

Aside from the fact that our Government has classed the motion picture as an essential industry, I believe the next important tendency is the recognition of good stories and good directors, both of which are necessary in the making of successful photoplays.

With best wishes for your continued success, I am,

E. O. WEINBERG,

More Liberal Booking Policy

I think the most important item of the past year has been the more liberal policy shown in regards to open booking, by producer, distributor and exhibitor.

Second, the chance to try in a practical way, the co-operative plan by exhibitors.

Third, that WID'S DAILY is not afraid to defend the exhibitor where they feel an injustice is being done, whether on the production of pictures or their merits, contracts, etc., etc.

THOMAS FURNISS,
Manager Bushwick Amusement Co.
Duluth, Minn.

Success of Bigger Pictures

The most satisfactory thing in the motion picture business of the past year, in my opinion, is the successful production of bigger pictures, marking the tendency towards that much desired goal—THE OPEN MARKET—resulting in the elevation of the business by elimination of cheap pictures.

J. D. WILLIAMS,
Manager First Nat'l Exhibitors' Circuit

Centralization and Co-operation

Amid the marked progress in the motion picture industry, progress eloquently attested by the magnificent service the industry has rendered, and is still rendering to the nation, whether in speeding up Liberty Loans or spreading the message of the Government through the land—there stands out, in my opinion, that vital accomplishment the crystalization into definite working form, of what has hitherto been merely a recognized but intangible trend towards economic centralization, and tendency towards unity of effort which should embrace production, distribution and exhibition of motion picture product.

Centralization and co-operation are no longer mere tendencies and trends, but recognized and essential forces already in operation.

Just as on the fields of Europe the once haphazard, unco-ordinated, though well meant Allied efforts to victory produced wasteful and partially disappointing results, and just as Allied success is now here because of co-operative action unified by centralization, so the instrument of progressive and enduring success for the exhibitor army in the motion picture field, namely organized cost-reducing co-operation and waste-saving Centralization, is, I am confident, to-day not merely at hand, but already arrived.

J. A. BERST,
Pres. United Picture Theatres, Inc.

Propaganda Work of Stars

I may say emphatically that I believe the co-operation between the stars of the screen and the producers, as well as others engaged in the various details of picture making, in the great drive for the Fourth Liberty Loan, outshines anything else that has happened in the past twelve months.

This co-operation and the resultant output has wonderfully demonstrated the power of the screen as a medium for expression of invaluable propaganda, and its possibilities for the awakening of the greater spirit of patriotic service.

I may with justice mention the really splendid propaganda pictures for this campaign which were made by such stars as Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Wallace Reid, Roscoe Arbuckle, Mack Sennett, Wm. S. Hart, Dorothy Dalton, Enid Bennett, Charles Ray, Lillian Gish, of our own and allied companies, as well as those produced by other companies with their most prominent stars.

These films will carry home to the people of America as nothing else could possibly do, the great message of the United States Treasury Department, the Nation's appeal to its people to provide the sinews of war, in the struggle against Prussianism.

Marketing Conditions Much Improved

More things have happened during the past year to make the motion picture industry a modern business enterprise than during any previous year since its inception.

The better motion pictures of today are being marketed in a manner befitting the importance of our gigantic business. The product is being sold not only to the exhibitor but to the public as well, along lines employed by large distributors in other modern industries.

Service is the keynote of all business success once the quality has become established. During the past year the exhibitor has been given more real service than ever before. Systematic sales plans have been embodied in the distribution of the motion picture product. The haphazard manner of distributing and exploiting the motion picture although not entirely extinct in some cases, is rapidly giving place to more businesslike methods.

To my mind there has happened during the past year nothing more important in the industry than the tremendous progress in the distribution and presentation of motion pictures to a point where today nearly all pictures are being sold on their merit and the producer and exhibitor profit or lose absolutely commensurate with the quality of the product. In other words, since the inception of the motion pictnre business it is only through the distribution and presentation developments of the past year that producers, distributors and exhibitors alike are liable to calculate their earnings in advance by virtue of the fact that we are now dealing in concrete values.

AL LICHTMAN,
General Manager Distribution, Paramount- Artcraft.

Co=operative Buying

What I consider a most vital matter of importance in the past year is the possibility of co-operative buying by the exhibitor from the producer, as this is the avenue to the opportunity, which will very soon show the strength of the exhibitor. This co-operative booking will grow very fast and will surely weaken the Powers as soon as the exhibitor realizes his own strength.

Organization of Exhibitors' Circuit

I believe the most important happening was the organization of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit. I haven't time to prepare the argument to back up my opinion.

A Little Talk with American Producers

By President.

It is one thing to make a picture.
It is another to get the maximum earning power out of it.
The home market is just one form of yield.
The foreign market is equally important.
Properly exploited, it brings large net returns.
The Inter-Ocean is in a unique position to secure such returns for producers on subjects that haven't been hawked about.

We have a simple requirement: a first look at subjects whose makers are sure they are standard.

It will pay such producers not to sign away foreign rights before consultation with us. And there is a possibility that we might like to take over world rights on a few good features during the 1918-'19 American amusement season.

OFFICE OF THE MANAGING DIRECTOR

Mr. Martin Johnson,
345 W. 40th St.,
New York City.

My dear Mr. Johnson:

It has just come to my attention that you are about to release your Cannibal Island pictures of the South Sea as a whole feature instead of serially.

I want to assure you that I think this is a very wise move, first because it is really a feature in itself and will be welcomed by any intelligent exhibitor as a break in the terrible rut and routine of the so-called dramatic or comedy feature and besides will be a good tonic for any first class theatre, and if properly exhibited will bring a big financial return and furthermore will do a great deal for the exhibitors institution. The possibilities that lend itself for both publicity and general interest have not been surpassed by any offering in the past year.

Wishing you every good luck, I am

Very sincerely yours,

Managing Director.

Alphabetical List of Features Separately Indexed Under Star and Director Headings

From September 1st, 1917 to September 1st, 1918

When preparations were begun on this first issue of "Wid's Year Book," an effort was made to secure as much informative data as possible, particularly things which had never before been presented in any sort of tabulated form.

There has never, up to the present time, been compiled a list of the features made by all companies, nor has any record been prepared listing these features under the headings of directors and stars. This we have tried to do.

In attempting to secure this information, we found tremendous difficulty in checking up to get our lists accurate.

There have undoubtedly been quite a number of omissions, but as nearly as it is humanly possible, we have tried to verify all of the information herein presented.

The influenza epidemic and a printers' strike has caused considerable additional trouble in preparing these schedules, and getting them off the press, so that we can say very frankly that while we think this schedule will be of tremendous value during the coming year, we realize that it is not as complete a schedule as will be in the next Year Book.

In the first listing, all features will be found in alphabetical order with the releasing company, the date of release, the star, director, and date of the review, if a review of the film appeared in "Wid's." This index should be of tremendous value to the entire trade in quickly checking up any subject.

In the following two listings will be found the productions of various directors and the productions of various stars, with these personages arranged in alphabetical order.

It is unfortunate that the delay caused by the epidemic and the strike brings this book out some time after the time originally intended, but the next issue of the Year Book will carry a complete table from September 1st, 1918 to September 1st, 1919, so that these issues will be invaluable for reference purposes.

Joey Jacobs

"WID" SAYS:

"Little Joey Jacobs is going to make a big hit in this and your folks will want to see more of him."

(Review of "Boston Blackie's Little Pal," Metro,—Sept. 8th)

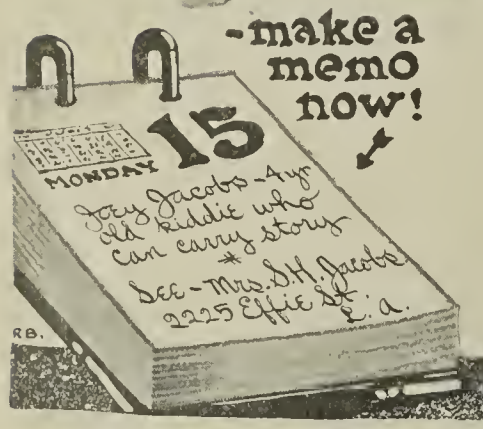
MR. PRODUCER:

The wholesome "kiddie element" that "Wid" describes as "sure-fire audience stuff" has made many a weak production register as delightful entertainment.

Kiddie stuff has been deleted from many scripts because most children try the patience of the director and cause innumerable losses in time and re-takes.

That's why we're telling you about Joey Jacobs—he grasps instructions quickly, has cute tricks of his own, is unspoiled—and a Keystone training has prepared him for anything that may be required of a part.



OPEN FOR LIMITED OR PERMANENT ENGAGEMENTS ON THE WEST COAST.

Do You Know What a Picture Is Worth in the Foreign Market?

If you don't, how are you going to get all that is coming to you out of your splendid American production?

If you don't know how much a picture should bring, you cause the foreign buyers to go elsewhere and they are deprived of your better pictures.

Our specialized knowledge enables us to serve both ends, and we ask only a fair return for our efforts in bringing buyer and seller together.
